

Snug Down in Fresh-Air Frosties

See the snow? Wheee—let's go!

The whole white-capped world's a winter carnival, and a nearby hilltop is the place to be (it's peopled and powdered and ready for fun). But frost things first: plan all out-going gear to give shivers the cold shoulder.

Two-getherness is sharing some of this bountiful white magic with your favorite snow buff. It's lively, lavish, long-haired sheepskin from Iceland (and brrr, it can fall to sub-zero there at the snap of a cold spell!). These zesty vests (over super sweaters by White Stag) are all the wow-power you need on this tingly romp. Each about $75. The head-hugger: the furriest hood you ever cuddled in, about $25. All by Icelandic. White ski jeans are straight-down denims by Levi's for Gals. He's spreeing in his favorite navy classics by Levi's. All are cotton, each about $6.

Tricolor topping (on the right) signals a warming trend as it zips you in cozy as a cocoon. Wave the flag in navy-blue nylon, traversed and armed with wide-streak white and parallel tracks of red. The belt circles a fast clip; more zippers keep the pockets private. By Aspen; about $36. Long red wrap-up scarf by Everitt, gloves by Grandoe. Boots are by Lange. See page 168 for skiwear stores, page 150 for accessories stores

JOSEPH SANTORO