Project Manager Jobs with Highways England Project Manager

Are you a forward thinking Project Manager and interested in joining a dynamic new organisation?

Highways England is the new government company charged with driving forward our motorways and major A roads. Building on the successful 21 year heritage of the Highways Agency, we maintain and enhance the most important communications network in the country, the Strategic Roads Network. A network valued at just over £104 billion, which carries approximately one-third of all road traffic in England and nearly two-thirds of all heavy freight traffic.

We are responsible for modernising and maintaining the highways, running the network and keeping traffic moving. Over recent years investment in our highways has increased. This has lead to advances in technology, such as smart motorways; enabling traffic to flow better. However even more is planned to be done.

Our vision is to be the world's leading road operator which means that we need to become a high performing organisation and in order to achieve this, we need great project managers, we need you. It's an exciting time to start a Highways England career. With £11 billion to invest in major road improvements over the next 5 years, there's an opportunity for you to be part of something special.

We are recruiting project managers posts across our specialist functions that design and schedule programmes our road investment programmes, deliver these investment programmes and deliver c major new infrastructure projects. Our project managers are responsible for the delivery of these projects to time, efficiency and customer impact targets and work collaboratively with internal and external stakeholders as well as the broader supply chain.

Our Project Managers should will come from a variety of sectors including construction, transport utilities and engineering but will have had significant exposure to complex infrastructure projects.

You should have extensive experience of delivering collaboratively in a multi stakeholder environment, have excellent influencing skills, a desire to challenge the status quo and a clear customer focus. A recognised Project Management qualification at ideally IPMA level D or equivalent would also be desirable.
